Item from the Daily Log - 18 January (Friday) 1952

Among other legislation which expires is tax relief for loss of property destroyed by enemy action. Mr. Bolton-Smith of NSRB asked if we strongly supported the re-enactment as the Treasury did not specially favor continuance of this authority. After talking to Treasury, it appears that the tax provision is not of too great use to us and I said we would not take a position for or against this particular piece of legislation and would study the question of such losses from the point of view of authority to reimburse in appropriate circumstances.
